RUPPINER WIESENCOB

Basic feed from natural herb meadow

Low protein

Promotes extensive chewing and long eating times

High quality roughage substitute

Particularly suitable for old or lean horses with eating disorders or dental problems

Good alternative in case of little grazing or limited access to roughage

Structure-rich roughage in sufficient quantity and quality is the basis of optimal horse feeding. Ruppiner Wiesencobs is a hay cob made from natural herb meadow, is low in protein and is an optimal and high-quality roughage substitute. The hay cobs are suitable for all horses and ponies of any breed and offer a good alternative for a variety of feeding problems. The tasty pellets are made from 100% pasture grass and can be fed as a supplement if the quantity or quality of the roughage is insufficient. In addition, they are ideally suited as a supplement for horses with little access to pasture or roughage, for old or lean horses with feeding disorders or for horses with dental problems.

Feeding recommendation: Due to their high swelling capacity, Ruppiner Wiesencobs should always be fed soaked with a soaking time of at least 30 minutes. Depending on the preferred consistency with a ratio of 2:1 to 4:1 (water:meadow cobs).

Depending on the amount of roughage to be replaced: up to 1.5 kg per 100 kg body weight.
